

Dr. Karen Abrão graduated from the Medical School of Faculdade Evangélica do Paraná, Curitiba, in 2002. She accomplished her Obstetrics and Gynecology medical residency at the University of São Paulo, in 2005, being since then a certified member of the Brazilian Federation of Gynecology and Obstetrics (FEBRASGO).

In 2008 she received her Ph.D in Medical Sciences by the Department of Obstetrics of the University of Sao Paulo Medical School, with research in the field of Obstetric Analgesia. Until 2011 she was a Staff Physician of the Obstetrics Department at Hospital das Clinicas – University of Sao Paulo, being part of the research groups in Labor and Gestational Diabetes.

In 2009 she joined Laureate at Anhembi Morumbi Medical School at Sao Paulo as a teacher in Women's Health. In the end of the year, she assumed the position of Dean of the Medical School. In this position, she organized the adoption of an innovative learning model at the Medical School, as well as the Clinical Rotations, establishing partnerships with Hospitals and the Brazilian public Health Care System. In 2013, she conducted the national accreditation process of the Medical School, with maximum grade.

Since 2010 she is a member of the Brazilian Association of Medical Education (ABEM) and since 2012 she is part of the Directory Board from Sao Paulo Region. Since 2013 she is the Coordinator of Medical Progress Test Consortium III.

She is also a consultant for Ministry of Education at Medical Schools. Since July 2013, she assumed the position of Dean of Health Sciences at Anhembi Morumbi.

Her fields of main interest are: Medical Education, Clinical Simulation, Women's Health, Obstetric Labor and Obstetric Analgesia.